

My Soundscape Narrative project is an original children's book about the adventures of a boy named Billy who runs away from his school's field trip to the Cathedral of Learning. My vision was to have an audiobook of this story with sound effects to keep the audience's attention and add another layer to the material. Sound effects were taken from free sources online but all voices were recorded by me and were pitched up according to the needs of the character.